The Inspiring Musical Journeys of Cordial Artists

“Hallelujah!
Amazing cables from a

We love Cordial!”

ACE OF CUPS

Formed in the Summer of Love in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury, this energetic, pioneering, and undaunted all-female rock band sat at the core the burgeoning psychedelic music scene, sharing the stage at the Fillmore, Avalon, and Winterland ballrooms with the most iconic bands of the day—Jefferson Airplane, The Grateful Dead, Quicksilver Messenger Service, the Band, and more. Along the way: weekend concerts in Golden Gate Park, protest rallies (including an arrest!), hanging with Ken Kesey and the Merry Pranksters, and a well-deserved nod from Jimi Hendrix to lead guitarist Mary Ellen Simpson's "great" playing. All this capped by a body of original rock/folk/pop/psychedelic tunes that amazingly, unbelievably, failed to catch the attention of a record label.

Still rockin' in the free world

Fast forward fifty years and several lifetimes of experiences, and the Cups are back, armed with a long-overdue double-album recorded and produced under the watchful ear of Dan Shea (Santana, Jennifer Lopez, Mariah Carey). Featuring a cast of notables from those heady SF days, including Jorma Kaukonen, Jack Casady, Bob Weir, Taj Mahal, Buffy St. Marie and more, the album captures the Cups' inimitable spirit and timeless energy.

Helping translate that spirit and energy: Cordial cables, now a staple in their rigs. Says the band: "We love Cordial!" And in the spirit of '67, we love you back.
